Project Description:

Agronomy 490G (General) is designed to allow a student the opportunity to undertake independent study in an area of special interest to the student and in an area in which the student cannot obtain classwork at Iowa State University. It is anticipated that the student will allocate approximately 45 hours per credit above that required for other courses. After the independent study is complete, the student is expected to organize the findings into a final report and submit a copy of this report to the instructor.
